FREESTYLE IN NEW YORK

Reebok celebrates the 25th anniversary of "Freestyle," the mythical and world-renowned shoe style that revolutionized the world of fitness and aerobics. Designed exclusively for women, Freestyle was the marker of a certain emancipation. Reebok icon Sheetal Sheth finds the shoe style fits her personality perfectly. A fan of extreme sports, the young American actress of Indian origin is just as daring with her on-screen performances. She recently starred alongside the legendary Albert Brooks in the much-praised "Looking for Comedy in the Muslim World," and won several awards for her role in "Wings of Hope." The rising star was also the lead in "American Chai," which took away the Best Film Award at the Philadelphia Film Festival. Today, Sheth has two new films underway. One is a thriller called "First Fear" and the other is a drama called "Why am I Doing This?" — both of which will be in theatres soon. For Reebok, Sheth is now lending her name to a special New York City themed Freestyle, inspired by yellow cabs and graffiti.
